PHYLLIS. (Frustrated.) I keep telling you -

HOWARD. I know, I know. Your name is Phyllis.

PHYLLIS. I think if we had a child we would be bonded. And you would feel, even if only unconsciously, a debt of gratitude towards me for supplying you with a miniature version of yourself, who would in turn reproduce and continue the cycle, ensuring, in an abstract way, your immortality, thus easing your fear of death.

HOWARD. Phyllis?

PHYLLIS. I read it.

HOWARD. Let's go to bed.

PHYLLIS. I want to make a baby!

HOWARD. I want to hold you. I want to protect you. I want to keep you with me forever and shield you from the world. I want to take care of you.

PHYLLIS. I think I'd like that.

HOWARD. You would, cupcake.

PHYLLIS. My name is —

HOWARD. Stop talking. (Howard embraces her and kisses her. Bishop appears, standing atop the dune. He holds high the nun's arm, dripping with blood, still clutching a rosary.)
BISHOP. I DID IT:!! (Phyllis and Howard look up at Bishop.

There is a blackout. Phyllis walks into a pool of light and addresses the audience.)

BISHOP. You look fine. You look the same.

PHYLLIS. I can't go on.
BISHOP. Don't be negative.

PHYLLIS. The lean-to is a pigsty.
BISHOP. Don't whine.

PHYLLIS. Was it a boy or a girl?

BISHOP. Boy.

PHYLLIS. Was he cute?

BISHOP. I didn't notice.
PHYLLIS. He cried on the plane.

BISHOP. You can't remember that

PHYLLIS. I do.

BISHOP. It was months ago.

PHYLLIS. Was it?

BISHOP. Or years.

PHYLLIS. But I remember. He cried on the plane. I guess the air pressure bothered him, made his ears pop.

BISHOP. Don't think about it.

PHYLLIS. He cried and cried and his mother tried to get him to stop but she couldn't. And I kept thinking they should just put him in the overhead baggage compartment.

BISHOP. You don't remember it. You think you do.

PHYLLIS. And now you're eating him. It.

BISHOP, It's good.
PHYLLIS. Is it?

BISHOP. Tender. You want some?

PHYLLIS. No thanks. I have a leg.

BISHOP. Baby's better.

PHYLLIS. Would you know it if I lost my mind?

BISHOP. I'd know it.

PHYLLIS. I think I've lost my mind.

BISHOP. You haven't. You were always queer. PHYLLIS. But my hands look unfamiliar to me.

BISHOP. You need a manicure.

PHYLLIS. True. But it's more than that.

BISHOP. Let me see. (She shows him her hands.) They're your hands. That's them.

PHYLLIS. What if you lost your mind, too? What if we're two loons, nutty as fruitcakes and there's no one else around as a sanity barometer.

BISHOP. I haven't.

PHYLLIS. I can't hear you stutter anymore.

BISHOP. I don't stutter anymore.

PHYLLIS. You don't?

BISHOP. No.

PHYLLIS. When did that happen?

BISHOP. Months ago.

PHYLLIS. I didn't hear it go away.

BISHOP. It was gradual.

PHYLLIS. (After a long pause.) I see things. I look up at the sky and the clouds arrange themselves into hot-air balloons. Beautiful balloons, all different colors, like a box of crayons. And they block the sun. And I'm in one, and I fly away.

The living room. Actually, the furniture is on the beach, arranged as if it were in a living room. There are two chairs, a sofa, a bar, and a television with its back to the audience. Pam is watching television.

PAM. Howard! Howard! They're on again! They're showing it again! (Out.) I love CNN. (To Howard.) Howard! They're showing Phyllis and Bishop getting off the plane again!—(Out.) the same footage over and over. That Ted Turner—a genius. (To Howard.) Howard!

HOWARD. (Enters, tucking in his shirt.) What?

PAM. They were showing that clip again. Phyllis and Bishop getting off the plane.

HOWARD. Oh, what time is it?

PAM. Almost three.

HOWARD. They should be here.

PAM. Are you nervous?

HOWARD. No. Yes. What time is it? PAM. It's almost three.

HOWARD. They should be here.

PAM. You said that.

PAM. No.

HOWARD. Can you cook an egg?

PAM. No.

HOWARD. What if someone wants eggs?

PAM. Why would they want eggs?

HOWARD. What if they're hungry and they want some eggs?

PAM. You don't eat eggs. We don't have eggs.

HOWARD. You can't be the maid.

PAM. Maybe I should go. HOWARD. Where will you go? Will you be all right? I'll take care of you. I'll support the baby. You won't have to
